

St David's Day

Saint David's Day History

Saint David's Day seeks to commemorate the patron saint of Wales, Saint David. This day aims to honour the Saint with a day of celebration.

Saint David's Day is usually accompanied by traditional emblems such as daffodils and leeks. Special services are typically held as well as parades and performances.

Saint David's Day has been recognized since the 12th century. It is celebrated annually on 1 March.
